WAR DEBTS PARLEY

U.S. INVITATION TO BRITAIN

EARLY IN MARCH

AN IMPORTANT
PROJECT

Washington, Jan. 20.

As foreshadowed yesterday, an important advance has been made in the war debt situation as between Great Britain and the United States.

President Hoover and Mr. Franklin Roosevelt to-day agreed that negotiations with Britain be opened without undue delay and Mr. H. L. Stimson was instructed to initiate discussions immediately with the British Ambassador for the purpose of arranging for a debt conference with representatives of Great Britain early in March, after the change of Administration.

OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE

An official communique issued from the White House this afternoon states:—"The conference this morning between President Hoover and the President-Elect, Mr. Roosevelt, was devoted mainly to a canvass of the foreign situation.

The following statement was agreed upon: The British Government has asked for a discussion on her war debt. The incoming administration will be glad to receive their representative early in March for this purpose.

"It is, of course, necessary to discuss at the same time the world economic problems in which the United States and Britain are mutually interested and, therefore, that representatives should also be sent to discuss ways and means of improving the world situation.

"It was settled that these arrangements will be taken up by the Secretary of State with the British Government."—Reuter and British Wireless.

FARM RELIEF MEASURE

ROOSEVELT WANTS
ACTION

(Our Own Correspondent).

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1931. Received, January 21, 9.55 a.m.)

London, Jan. 20.

Washington reports state that President-Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, in the course of his conference with President Hoover to-day, asked for the enactment, before March 4th, of the Farm Relief Bill and the projected legislation revising the bankruptcy laws so as to enable debtors to arrange a settlement with the majority of their creditors.

March 4th is the date on which Mr. Roosevelt takes over the Administration.

THE LAUSANNE SETTLEMENT

NAZI & COMMUNIST OPPOSITION

(Our Own Correspondent).

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1931. Received, January 21, 9.55 a.m.)

London, Jan. 20.

According to a message from Berlin, a joint Nazi-Communist resolution was adopted by the Reichstag Foreign Affairs Committee to-day condemning the Lausanne Agreement for a settlement of the reparations question.

Picture shows Shanhaikwan Railway Station the scene of much activity at present, with the arrival of fresh Japanese reinforcements and the return of some of the refugees. (Photo By Mr. Victor Muesle).

MUTINY ON FRONT

MANCHUKUO REGT.
DISARMED

CLASH WITH THE JAPANESE

Peking, Jan. 21.

The mutiny of a Manchukuo regiment under Ching Kuo-jui, which was stationed in the Chien-kow Pass occurred on Thursday morning before dawn. The Manchukuo soldiers clashed with the Japanese resulting in thirty casualties on both sides and the disarmament of the mutineers, according to Chinese dispatches from Shihho, the main Chinese defensive line.

Apart from extensive troop movements at Hulutao, Chinchow and Shanhaikwan, where the Japanese defenders have been greatly reinforced during the past few days, a lull prevails on the front.

The Nanking Government has telegraphed to Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang giving him full power to deal with the North China situation and to exercise his authority as Chairman of the Military Council at Peking.

The former Chinese Premier, Mr. Tuan Chi-jui, who is well known for his pro-Japanese attitude during his long administration as Premier in Peking, arrived here quietly last evening to interview Government leaders on the Manchurian problem. His arrival at this time is considered significant.

WHITE SLAVE TRAFFICKER

GETS SIX MONTH
TERM

The story of how a "white-slave" trafficker, in utilizing a well-known method of the trade, over-reached himself and was in her turn tricked by two intended victims, was related to the Police Magistrate, Mr. Wynne-Jones, this morning, when the woman, Cheng Yee, was charged with bringing two women into the Colony for the purpose of prostitution.

Natives of Hongkong, the two girls, Lau Fong and Leung Nui, were starving when they were picked up up-country in Toyshan, by Cheng Yee, a notorious procuress, who, taking unscrupulous advantage of their unfortunate situation, bound them to her by a written contract.

This document, exhibited in Court, required the victims, in the guise of a loan having been made and received, to go to any port villaged by the woman and to "reimburse" her from the proceeds of prostitution.

The two girls signed the contract, but having got the women to bring them back to Hongkong where they were born, lost very little time in informing the police authorities. They were rescued by a police party under Detective Sub-Inspector Elston, from an address in the slum quarter of the city.

The woman, Cheng Yee, was sentenced to the maximum penalty of six months' hard labour.

CHINESE RETURNING TO SHANHAIKWAN

SHOPS RE-OPENING IN THE CITY.

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1931. Received, January 21, 9.55 a.m.)

Peking, Jan. 21.

According to Japanese information, most of the people who left Shanhaikwan during the recent fighting have returned and business is being resumed.

Peace and order is being maintained by a Peace Preservation Committee.—Reuter.

YOKOHAMA RIOT

SINGER COMPANY
DISPUTE

JAPANESE POLICE
ATTITUDE

Yokohama, Jan. 21.

Despite the serious riot on the premises of the Singer Sewing Machine Company on Wednesday, the authorities have no intention of giving special police protection to the firm, according to Japanese information.

It will be recalled that a mob attacked the premises and destroyed nearly all movable property including important records. The American Ambassador called upon Count Uchida requesting an immediate investigation and adequate police protection for American life and property in the future.

It is now said that the Japanese have no intention of giving any further protection than is being given to Japanese firms.

COMPULSORY MEDIATION

In view, however, of the clash in the company's headquarters, which the Japanese say was between strikers and strike breakers, the police have decided to make compulsory mediation in the Company's labour dispute.

The clerks and workmen of the Singer Company, totalling over a thousand, have been on strike for six months.—Reuter.

COMING WORLD CONFERENCE

COMMITTEE MEETS ON WEDNESDAY.

London, Jan. 20.

The Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, will probably return to Geneva on Tuesday and will preside at a meeting of the Organising Committee of the World Economic Conference on Wednesday.

It will be the duty of this committee to determine the dates and make other arrangements for the Conference, for which an annotated agenda was completed yesterday by the Preparatory Committee of Experts.—British Wireless.

ATLANTIC S.O.S.

BRITISH VESSEL
SINKING

GALE RAGING

FOUR MEN SWEEP
OVERBOARD

London, Jan. 20.

Another drama of the seas is being enacted in mid-Atlantic, where the British freighter, Exeter City, is in distress, in peril of sinking.

A heavy gale is raging and the freighter has been badly battered. Great seas are sweeping her decks and the Captain and three members of the crew have been swept overboard and drowned.

The American liner, American Merchant, which raced to the assistance of the doomed steamer on picking up her S.O.S. signals is standing by and hopes are entertained that the remainder of the crew will be rescued although in the heavy weather, the gale is still at its height apparently. It is impossible to launch small boats.

LINER STANDING BY.

The American Merchant wireless that she is doing everything possible to effect the rescue of the men aboard the Exeter City and probably it will be found possible to throw out a lifeline.

The Exeter City belongs to the Bristol City Line of Steamships, Limited, for which Messrs. C. Hill and Sons are the managers. She is a vessel of 2,959 tons, built in 1908 at South Shields.

An old ship, only 321 feet long and drawing only 14 feet of water, she was unable to stand up to the battering of heavy seas in the gale.—British Wireless.

MR. DE VALERA'S PROGRAMME

ABOLITION OF THE SENATE

Dublin, Jan. 21.

The abolition of the Senate as at present constituted or a reduction by a considerable number of its members is proposed in an election manifesto issued by Mr. de Valera to-day.

Mr. de Valera also intends, he says, to effect substantial reduction in the numbers of Deputies in the Dail after the next general election. His third step will be the introduction of a Bill in the next session providing for the unified control of railway and road transport.—Reuter.

SHING MUN DAM GORGE

TENDERS BEING INVITED

The Government is inviting tenders in connexion with the Shing Mun gorge dam scheme. One tender is for the laying of two concrete tracks for lorries on the access road from Tsun Wan Police Station to Pincapple Pass, and another for the supply of 10,000 four-inch and 10,000 six-inch agricultural drain pipes.

Amongst other tenders invited are those for the formation of a site for the new Government Hospital; for the development of Kowloon Tsai (first section), comprising the levelling of an area to the east of Waterloo Road; and for the removal of silt from the basin of the Aberdeen lower reservoir.

At next week's meeting of the Rotary Club, the Right Rev. Bishop Hall will speak on "The Social Survey of the Tyneside."

FIRM ATTITUDE EXHIBITED

WOULD NOT DISCUSS JAPANESE
COUNTER-PROPOSAL

REPORT SUB-COMMITTEE
ALREADY APPOINTED

GENEVA, JAN. 20.

THE COMMITTEE OF NINETEEN THIS AFTERNOON DECIDED TO GIVE JAPAN WHAT IS VIRTUALLY A TWENTY-FOUR HOURS' ULTIMATUM TO ACCEPT OR REJECT THE COMMITTEE'S PROPOSAL SUBMITTED ON WEDNESDAY.

The Committee regarded the Japanese attitude as unsatisfactory. The Japanese delegation had been given two days in which to consult their government on the Committee's proposal, which offered to drop the suggestion of an invitation to Russia and the United States provided Japan accepted the remainder of the December resolution as it stood.

The Japanese delegation did not reply directly to the proposal but submitted minor modifications to the resolution, which the Committee of Nineteen did not even discuss! It was instead unanimously decided to give Japan a further twenty-four hours in which to accept or reject the proposal.

LYTTON REPORT ENDORSEMENT.

The Committee then considered what course they would adopt in the event of an unfavourable reply from Japan and it is understood that on the suggestion of Captain Anthony Eden, the British Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, a Sub-Committee was appointed to consider the question of a Draft Report under Paragraph Four, Article Fifteen of the Covenant. It was gathered that the Report would be based upon an endorsement of the Lytton Report.—Reuter.

M. Hymans presided at to-day's session of the Assembly's Committee of Nineteen to hear the Japanese reply to the Committee's enquiry, which in full, was:

Whether, if the Japanese demand for the exclusion from the Conciliation Commission of two non-member States, Russia and the United States, were conceded, Japan would accept the other clauses including declarations:

THREE DECLARATIONS.

(1) that the provisions of the Covenant of the League, the Kellogg Pact and the Nine-Power Treaty must be respected;

(2) that a Conciliation Commission should be set up to conduct, in conjunction with the parties to the dispute, negotiations for a settlement on the basis of the principles laid down in Chapter Nine of the Lytton Report and having regard to the suggestions contained in Chapter Ten.

(3) that neither a mere return to status quo ante in Manchuria, nor the maintenance and recognition of the present regime there would provide a durable solution.

JAPANESE COUNTER.

The Japanese delegation, having received fresh instructions from Tokyo, did not reply directly to the Committee's enquiry but proceeded to suggest amendments to the resolution including proposals:

(1) that the Committee of Conciliation should consist of only from five to seven members.

(2) that the Committee of Conciliation should not intervene directly in the Sino-Japanese conversations but simply give their assistance when necessary.

(3) that all reference to the non-recognition of Manchukuo be excluded both from the speech of M.

DEFENCE OF PEKING

PUBLIC ASSISTANCE
TO TROOPS

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1931. Received, January 21, 9.55 a.m.)

Peking, Jan. 21.

Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang gave a reception to more than a hundred representatives of various public bodies yesterday afternoon, when views were exchanged regarding the problems of the defence of Peking, the equipment of the troops for the bitterly cold weather, and the maintenance of peace and order in the Peking-Tientsin area.

Marshal Chang expressed his appreciation of the support rendered to his troops by the public during the last few days and informed those present of the establishment of a committee in the Peking Branch of the Military Council to co-operate with various outside organisations regarding the distribution of comforts to the troops.—Reuter.

Hymans and from the resolution.

(4) that non-members of the League could be invited to take part in the Committee's deliberations provided that the first three points be accepted.

FURTHER 24 HOURS.

The Committee of Nineteen did not discuss these amendments but gave the Japanese delegation a further twenty-four hours in which to accept or reject the Committee's first proposal. The Committee after a long discussion finally adjourned until to-morrow (Saturday) afternoon when a reply will be expected from Japan.—British Wireless.

General Smuts.

SOUTH AFRICA CRISIS

GEN. SMUTS DEMANDS
RESIGNATION

MINISTERIAL
LAUGHTER

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1931. Received, January 21, 9.55 a.m.)

London, Jan. 21.

Amid opposition cheers and derisive Ministerial laughter, General Smuts announced at yesterday's opening of the South African Parliament that on Tuesday, he will move that the Government should resign forthwith and accord an opportunity for the formation of a National Government.

The Finance Minister, Mr. Havenga, announced the impending introduction of a Bill to abolish the surtax which was imposed in order to protect South African industries following the depreciation of sterling and other currencies.

Although it is evident that there is strong feeling in the country against the Hertzog Government, they still command a large majority in the House and give no indication of any intention to resign.

LABOUR AND HERTZOG.

In the country, the tide continues to run against General Hertzog, and in response to General Smuts's invitation, the South African Labour Party recently decided to co-operate with the South African Party. The intensive racialism of the Dutch Nationalists has made this inevitable. The formal Nationalist-Labour Coalition was dissolved at the last election, and General Hertzog, whose own party commands an absolute majority in the House, can face with equanimity the transfer of the eight Labour votes. But in the country the loss of Labour support is a serious matter—the more so because the leaders have only taken the course set for them by their rank and file at the Germiston by election.

Lausanne, Jan. 20.

Captain W. L. Hope, who has been conducting a search for Squadron Leader Hinkler all this week in the remote hope that he might still be alive, has decided to abandon the search owing to the adverse weather conditions, making observation almost impossible.

He returns to London to-morrow.—Reuter.

The fears entertained in some quarters for the safety of Captain Hope and his assistant pilot, Healey, who were making a search in the Alps for Squadron Leader Hinkler, were dispelled when the aviators returned to Voiron (this afternoon). They had spent the night on Diablerets, having made a perfect landing in a field in order to proceed on foot to examine an object, which from the air was mistaken for a derelict aeroplane.—British Wireless.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

One pretty little hat that will make your spirits soar like Mercury is this winged hat of oyster angora and brown silk banding, with two green wings, discreetly pert. It swoops down onto your forehead in a new manner, up on the sides slightly.

If you crave dignity this buff felt hat with contrasting shoe-string lacings of felt will get it for you. It is a slightly tip-titled little bonnet, with a sweet bow of the lacings at the back and a sheer veil to aid in giving you that reserved look.

Jaunty and tailored is the henna and brown hat of a Victorian flavour, made of striped fabric, soft and flattering. It sits a lot straighter on your head than most hats do nowadays, indicating the way apring hats will behave in a few months. It has one little brown feather in front, at an engaging angle.

BEAUTY HINTS.

Weather-Proof Your Skin.

Weather-proofing your skin for winter is an immediate problem to most women.

Women with oily skins may lament but they have a nerve! It's the dries who should complain.

For oil in your skin is the protective coating against cold weather, the ravages of a too-hot and too-dry house and age.

If you are a born dry, just recognize the fact and lubricate your own face, neck, arms and hands.

Have you ever, when doing the work, or sitting at your desk in the office, felt your face feel rather taut, your head hot and your lips dry? Have you, in such circumstances, ever tried the simple expedient of dashing cold water over your face and letting it dry without wiping? If you have, then you will understand this beauty hint. Probably your skin needs more oil than it has and you should give it to it.

It sometimes is not just a simple matter of rubbing more oil into the skin. You may be cheating yourself of enough butter and cream in your diet and your whole system may need fat. It may be that your nerves are tired and you need rest. It may be that you are growing dried-up or dehydrated. The answer to that is to drink more water, lots of it, a glass an hour for a week or two and then see how you feel.

But rubbing oil into the skin always helps, even after you have done the more fundamental beauty things.

Also give your face the treat of getting slapped to stir the circulation. Particularly, massage your temples, delicately touch the fine nerves just inside the inner edges of your eyelashes and through that little space between them. Also ruffle up your hair all over your head and rub the muscles at the back of your neck.

Don't let the tension of winter get you!—Alicia Hart.

MIRROR MAGIC

Mirrors are being used in increasing numbers to do nice things in certain rooms. In a room with a fireplace, a mirror hung to reflect it doubles the pleasure of the hearth. One house that has a rather small living room, with adjoining small dining room and open double doors, achieves a real sense of space with a large mirror at the far end of the dining room. From the sitting room you look through the doors, into the mirror and see the flowers and trees out of the front window.

For formal afternoons or for informal dinner parties, this exquisite pale crepe gown is something new and different. It has a charming little shirt collar, a tiny round yoke, full sleeves with tight cuffs and handsome hand tucking through the sides. Its sash is braided and fringed.

SOUND ADVICE.

Take Care of Your Spectacles.

Spectacles seem such simple articles that the importance of keeping them in good order is frequently overlooked.

Clean them at least once daily, using either one of the special preparations to be obtained for this purpose or a piece of dry carbolio soap. Rub the soap lightly over both sides of the lenses, and then polish with a dry cloth. This treatment keeps the lenses clean for a longer period and prevents them steaming because of sudden change of temperature or because of rain.

Avoid scratching the lenses. Never clean them with coarse cloths; use soft surface fabrics. A suitable cloth is usually provided by the optician. If the spectacles must be laid down outside the case, first close them, then lay them down on the ruga. Lying thus, with lenses uppermost, there is a little fear of their being scratched by gritty dust or hard and rough surfaces.

The frames also deserve a little care. Always ease them off from behind the ears in preference to pulling them off from the front.

Be careful not to twist the frame when polishing the lenses. Most people hold their glasses by the bridge when cleaning them, but this is wrong, and will very probably cause an eventual breakage. The correct method is to hold the lens between the thumb and forefinger.

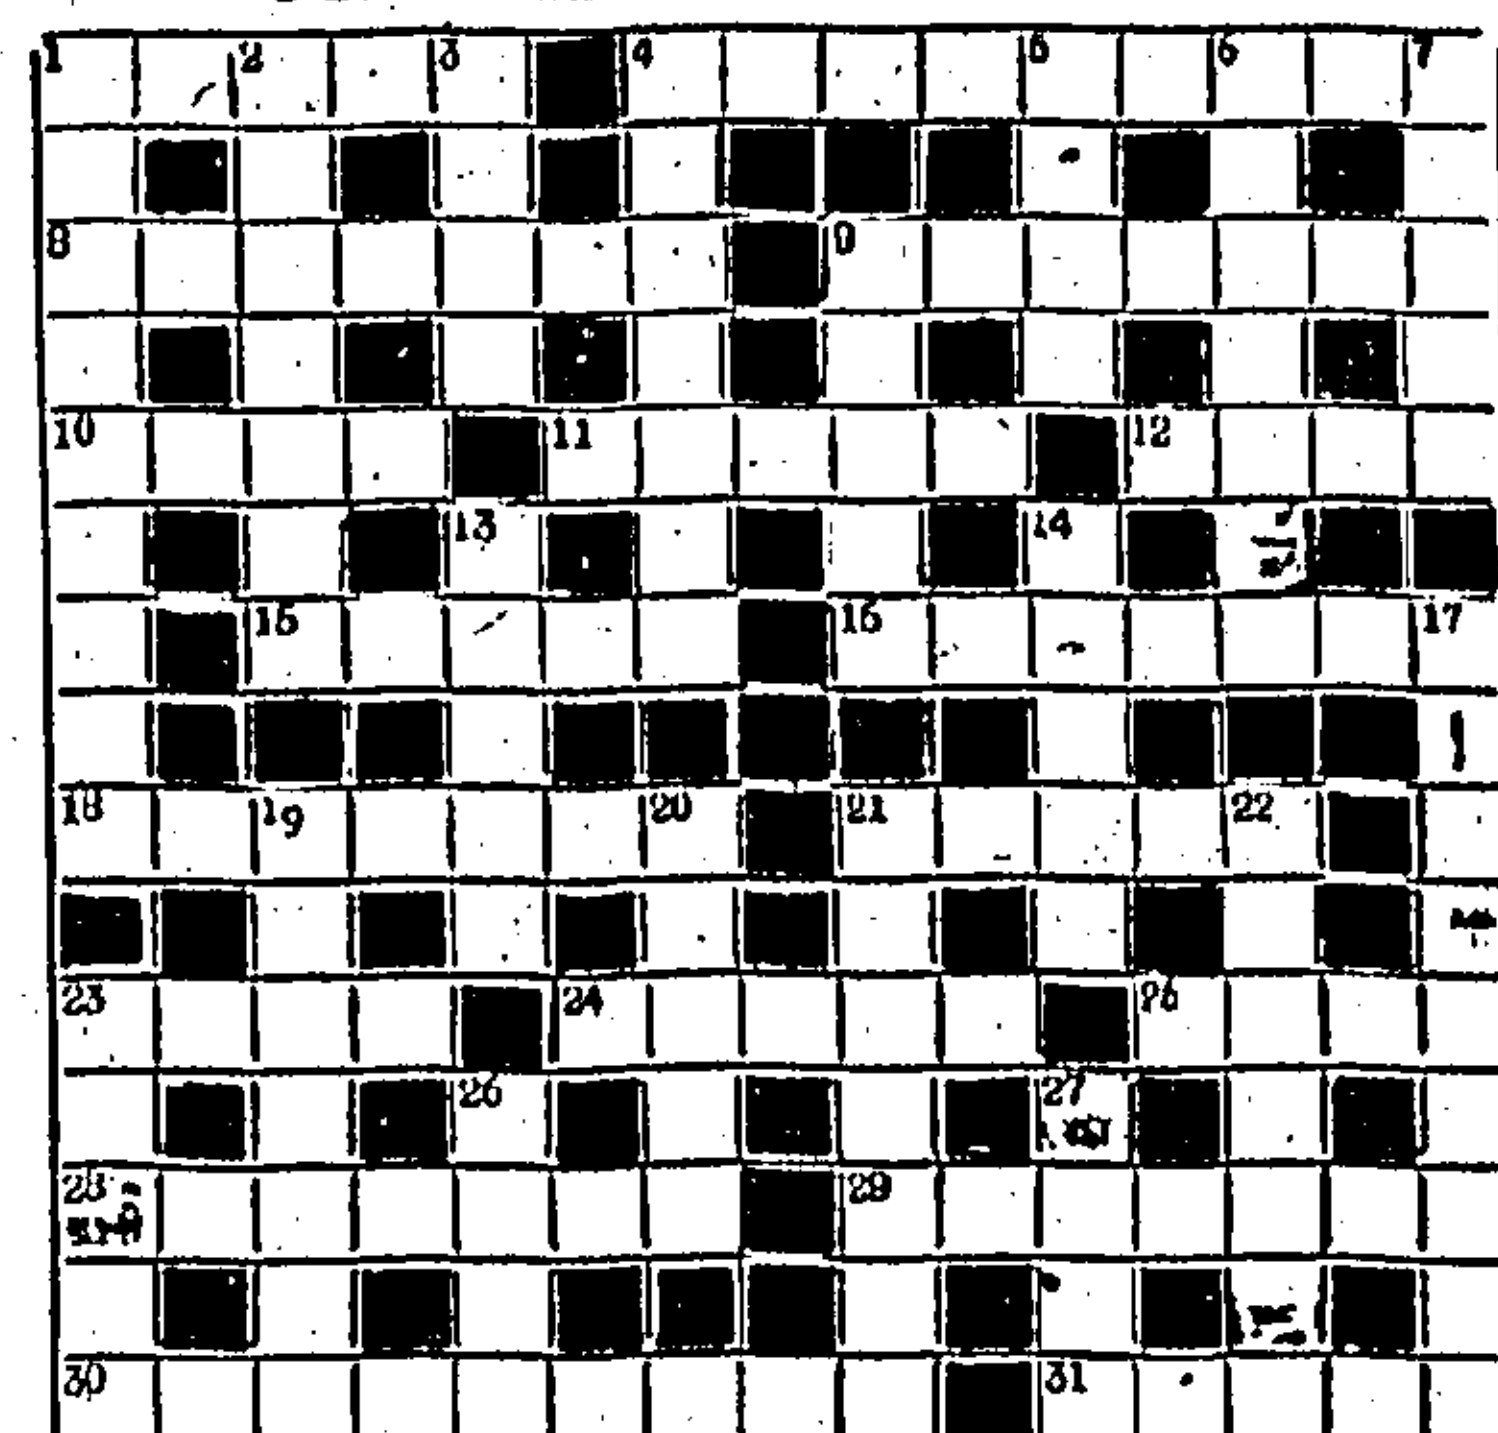

If the frames become bent, take them to an optician's to be straightened. You may possibly break them if you try this yourself. Minor service of this description, involving no replacements, is often done free.

W. R. HAKIN. In Exchange.

HANDY STYLE

If you have any dress that is tight through the waist but otherwise all right, split it straight down the back, bind the edges and make a loop at the neckline to fasten it there with a fancy button. This is a new style that proves very useful in making things over.

"WEEK-END MURDER"

BY GABRIEL F. FORBUSH

CHAPTER XXX

"Hello!" called Tom unceremoniously. Linda, secretly amused at Statlander's confusion, sobered as she saw that her husband was evidently labouring under some excitement. His first words confirmed it.

"Something's happened," he said. "Linda—could I see you alone a moment? Sorry. Excuse me, Mr. Statlander."

The other waved him away with a shade of affronted dignity. "Quite all right, quite all right," he replied. "Pray don't consider me at all. I shall sit here a while, enjoying the—"

What he would enjoy was lost on the Averills, disappearing rapidly in the opposite direction. Linda half-running to keep up with her husband.

"Tom—what on earth? Is something hurt?" she gasped.

"Oh! Sorry, Binks! Didn't realize I was running you so—or that I scared you either. No, no great calamity, but things are upset again. Tim called—they've finally heard from Dr. Boyle."

"On his way! Oh, and I wanted—"

"No. Out of it entirely."

"What do you mean?"

"Wrecked on the way back. Wild driving, I suppose. Anyhow they had a complete and terrible smash-up. Happened a couple of hours ago by all accounts, but the people have only just heard."

"I thought he wouldn't take all that time!"

"It happened down that long stretch of road through the Pine Barrens—no house anywhere around and the road practically deserted at the time. Finally someone did pass and then it took a while to get help and move them all. Tim says Boyle has a fractured leg and was unconscious for some time. I think one of the men was hurt seriously—all pretty badly smashed up. They got them straightened out as to names and so forth after awhile and phoned Mrs. Boyle. She relayed it to Tim and Tim called us."

"What does it mean, Tom?"

He looked at his watch. "Nine o'clock—it means the rest of the evening with no Boyle to butt in and the gang here all night."

"Just playing into our hands."

"Yes, if we can't find out now—"

"Do they all know?"

"Oh, yes. Couldn't help it if I'd wanted to, which I didn't especially. I talked some time to Tim. Marvin was dummy and he drifted out to hear about it and the rest followed. Shaughnessy appeared from somewhere—and Linda, that's really what I wanted to tell you."

"Yes—what?"

"He's watching the bridge and may cut in but hasn't so far. I've got to take a chance and beat it over there. But, Binks, something is up! As I went to the phone I saw the service door into the hall was open and automatically stopped to close it. Just then Rosie rushed down that little hallway and up the back stairs, crying as though her heart would break."

"Good heavens! What do you suppose—?"

"Don't know and can't stop to find out. You've got two jobs on your hands—to keep him from following me and to get at Rosie and pump her. Come on inside. I'll go right through the house and out the other door. I don't think he will notice—Shaughnessy, I mean—and you can stop and make conversation with them all."

They stood a moment at the threshold of the casement door. The unlighted room looked dark by contrast with the outdoors where daylight still lingered.

"I'll hold him till you get back and then go upstairs. You won't be long?" It was both a question and a statement, and as they stepped across the sill, Tom started to answer, then halted as he almost collided with a figure standing just inside the door.

"I'll hurry like the dickens—why, Mr. Shaughnessy!—coming out on the terrace? That's right. There's actually a bit of breeze there."

Towering, broad-shouldered and bulky, in the gloom of the indoor twilight, the Irishman looked at his host in silence. Linda sensed some tingling undercurrent of suspense in his momentary pause and his curt reply.

"No—no, thanks," he replied shortly. Then, more easily, "This my misfortune that I must use my brains to come by an honest living, Mrs. Averill. Having played the butterfly since you took me in, it's the industrious grasshopper I must be tonight."

Linda laughed outright. "Aren't you a little mixed in your figures of speech?" she asked.

"Possibly," he replied unabashed. "Now if you were to cite me a proverb from the Gaelic—"

Tom had slipped quietly away, unobserved, he hoped, in the dim light, and Linda, facing the big centre table, had thus manoeuvred Shaughnessy with his back toward the door. She felt beneath this lazy tone, the firmest determination to return at once to his sequestered little apartment. Better that Tom should be thwarted altogether than that he be caught red-handed!

"Tell me this, Mr. Shaughnessy," she spoke quickly, with an appealing upward look partly due to his stature, though also deliberately charged with guileful admiration. "I have so wanted to ask you—does American country life—this sort of thing," she gestured vaguely, "differ very much from the same thing in England—as much as it seems from books, at least?"

He looked utterly astonished at her urgent question, and well he might, for before she began speaking she herself had not had the least idea what she would say. "I ought to lead him to Cousin Amos," she thought. "It's the only one I haven't talked to about it—but I simply can't pump right down into it without any apparent cause. He'd think me insane."

From his expression, however, she wondered whether she had not already conveyed that impression. "I mean," she plunged desperately, "I have a paper to give—on the development of club life in America—and it seemed to me perhaps that there lay one of the really fundamental differences between the English and the American social scheme of things—the American dependence on all sorts of clubs and the English people just taking each other for granted. A locality or a social stratum in a locality forming its own club, so to speak."

She had floundered ahead desperately, but it struck her as on the whole not bad for an extempore performance. He looked at her with more the effect of really seeing her and taking a cigarette from his case (that simple act made her relax a little), answered quite directly and with less of the professional Irishman in his voice and manner.

"That's an idea," he said. "A little rough now—and of course England has a few clubs!" She caught his slightly malicious twinkle.

"Oh, yes—golf—and what's their names?—those stuffy ones in London."

"Their members would be flattered."

"I derive this impression from reading English novels," she retorted loftily.

"Then you haven't been abroad lately, Mrs. Averill?"

"Not since I was a little girl," Linda confessed. "Before the war. And then more on the continent than in the British Isles. But I've always wanted to go there most—and Ireland must be wonderful!"

There was something in his sceptical glance that made her a little uneasy over this last attempt. Perhaps he was not as susceptible to blarney as he was adept at administering it. He spoke with a suggestion of grimness.

"Your sentiments were not shared by others of your family, Mrs. Averill."

"Tom?" Linda was honestly surprised. Then as she realized his meaning—"Oh, Cousin Amos! No, I'm sorry, Mr. Shaughnessy—" her mind flashed back to the dinner the first night of this hapless week-end. "He was—" opinionated, I hope in view of what happened you've forgiven his rudeness."

"There's a well-known proverb," he remarked dryly. "Latin it is—about nothing ill of the dead—"

"Well?" Linda faced him a trifle defiantly. The unsuppressed bitterness of his tone seemed, now dragging a feud from the grave.

"After all—" he seemed launched upon a flow of that easy, wordy, picturesque indignation which was apparently roused by the slightest affront or, in this case, the memory of one. But just behind her, at the casement giving on the terrace, Tom's voice spoke and their guest checked himself without any sign of apology or contrition.

"Oh, here you are! I thought you'd both be on the terrace with Statlander! I ran over to the garage—left some sales figures I wanted to show him in the pocket of the car and came around the end of the house thinking you'd be there. Why stand here in the dark? Come on out—the air's a little clearer, at any rate—not quite so hot!"

Linda added her word of agreement. "Do come, Mr. Shaughnessy. We'll have some cool drinks—and if those two funds for business talk shop we needn't be so foolish!"

"Thank you, no." He spoke to her but his eyes were on Tom. "I must get back, if you'll excuse me. Your delightful—and isolated—garage is too great a temptation. Even I have no excuse for not working when the gods provide such an ideal spot. I hope you found what you wanted, Mr. Averill. Goodnight."

YESTERDAY'S MARKET EASY

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was easy yesterday. Business done, 700,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—During the first hour the market rose rapidly due to short covering and anticipated results of the Hoover-Roosevelt Conference but eased off gradually with a dull turnover. When results of the Conference were announced Wall Street accepted same as constructive but not sufficient cause for an immediate rise and the market eased off further but majority of the issues, however, retained their

MOTOR NOTES BY "VELOC"

HOME LEAVE.

Eagerly looked forward to, one's home leave can be a disappointment unless there is a car at one's disposal, and, if it were generally realised how simply and cheaply the necessary arrangements may be made, a very few would omit to do so before sailing.

It is, for instance, possible to turn in one's present car in part payment for a new one, which will be ready to drive away on arrival in Britain or at any Continental port. Then, at the expiration of leave, it will be expertly packed (if necessary) and shipped. An alternative plan which secures the use of a new car during the time one is at home is the re-purchase scheme. By this means one is able to purchase a new car for delivery on arrival and to sell it back to the suppliers at a guaranteed price at the expiration of one's leave. This is definitely cheaper than hiring a car, and possesses several obvious advantages.

Full details of both arrangements will gladly be given by Messrs. Gilman & Co., Ltd., distributors of Humber and Hillman cars. Extended terms are available, so that a large cash outlay is not necessary, while there need be no fears as to the punctilious method in which the obligations on the part of the suppliers of the car will be carried out.

ANTI-SKIDDING.

A French inventor, M. Menjou, recently introduced on a Paris skating rink a new type of anti-skid tyre. The tyre, shown above, has two outer rows of tread composed of ordinary rubber and the centre row of soft rubber. A demonstration on the ice of the rink proved successful.

SEEKING PERFECTION.

A great deal is heard nowadays of the strenuous tests to which motor engines and chassis are subjected before any new model is put into production. In fact, manufacturers vie with one another in their search for such severe trials that by the time the car is offered to the public it is as near to perfection as is humanly possible.

A particularly ingenious method of "testing out" has just been adopted by Hoopers, the well known London coachbuilders. The managing director has had a body built for his Rolls-Royce, each outside section of which has been treated with a different kind of paint or cellulose. As the car is used in all weathers and under all sorts of conditions, this arrangement will serve to determine which of the various kinds of finish employed proves most lasting and serviceable. In addition to this, various types of locks and fittings have been incorporated, while the interior also has been upholstered with several different kinds of leather.

This novel method will undoubtedly result in extremely valuable data being obtained in the most expeditious and efficient manner.

MOTORING CONUNDRUMS.

Each day from three to four thousand letters are received at the Headquarters of The Automobile Association in London. These arrive from motorists in every part of the Universe requiring information and advice on motoring subjects.

Here are a few conundrums which the A.A. has answered during the past month:

Where can I obtain a pair of rubber boots of the type worn by the mobile police in Sussex?

Can you tell me the cost of building the Tower Bridge. Was it presented by one of the City Guilds, or paid for by the City?

An enquirer from Glasgow writes—"Is it cheaper to walk or travel by pedal cycle from here to Florence?"

A member in Ceylon asks "Can the A.A. please obtain an anti-rheumatism ring for me?" whilst a motorist in Central Africa wants a dart board "so that I can teach the local residents the good old English game of darts."

A Bulgarian motorist writes "Is it safe to motor in England un-

62,500,000,000 TO 1
CHANCE

COMPETITIONS IN NEWSPAPERS

EXCESSIVE PRIZE MONEY

Representatives of the newspaper industry gave evidence before the Royal Commission on Lotteries and Betting.

The views of the Newspaper Society were put forward by the President, Mr. Walter Harrison.

These, to a considerable extent, had reference to newspaper competitions.

The Society, it was stated, considered that certain competitions had been open to objection for two reasons:

(1) the excessive amount of the prize offered;

(2) the large element of chance involved.

There could be no doubt that prize money was excessive when, as at present £15,000 was offered for competitions almost entirely dependent on chance. An extreme example of chance was the offer for a correct guess of the scores in each of the four innings of a Test Match.

A conservative estimate of the odds against any single coupon winning was 62,500,000,000 to one.

To obtain a constantly increasing circulation, certain newspapers felt that it was always necessary to surpass any offer made by their contemporaries, and thus was brought about a state of unrestricted competition.

Limitation Desired.

The Society considered that some limitation was desirable. They were in favour of the continuation of newspaper competitions in general, as opposed to those in which excessive prize-money was offered and in which the element of chance predominated over that of skill.

The Chairman (Sir Sidney Rowland)—Do you think it is part of the newspaper business to have a competition for prizes?—I think that, in the present trend of public opinion, yes.

It is neither news nor opinion, then why is it done?—I suppose to make a paper more attractive to the public and thereby increase the sale.

Do you not realise that the mere fact of having these gigantic sums dangled before the eyes of readers is deleterious?—If you take the £15,000 recently offered I think it is very deleterious.

Sir Sidney Skinner—Would you welcome a cessation of a good deal of this type of competition?—Certainly.

Betting News.

Mr. Harrison said that the Society were opposed to the prohibition of the publication of betting odds. It would not eliminate betting, but would simply grant wider scope to dishonest book-makers.

"If betting is wrong, stop it; then obviously you stop the news as well," stated Mr. Harrison. "But to suggest that the news should be prohibited although betting continues, as seems to be proposed by some who have given evidence, is to put the cart before the horse."

The Society contended, added Mr. Harrison, that as long as events which were the subject of betting continued, it was for the Press to give the public full information about them, principally because they were matters of public interest, but partly also for the public protection against dishonesty resulting from lack of knowledge.

They were also of the opinion that an interference with the publication of such news would be ill-advised, because it would be a limitation of the freedom of the Press, and also it would be a useless interference, since it would not strike at the root of the matter. A free Press was the best safeguard for the public.

Evidence was given on behalf of the Editor of The Times, the views expressed being limited to the practice and experience of that newspaper. Other witnesses were Mr. F. C. Cook, general manager of Odhams Press, and Mr. Kenneth Henderson, for Associated Newspapers, Ltd.

State Lotteries.

Mr. J. M. Keynes, the economist, in evidence, stated that he was in favour of State lotteries, adding that not to have them yet wink at other forms of lotteries seemed to him the worst form of hypocrisy.

"To look forward to a life of poverty without the slightest hope of amelioration," he replied to Mrs. Stocks, "is not good for people, and if, with a slight expense, they can live in the hope of something turning up, then it seems to me that is not an evil."

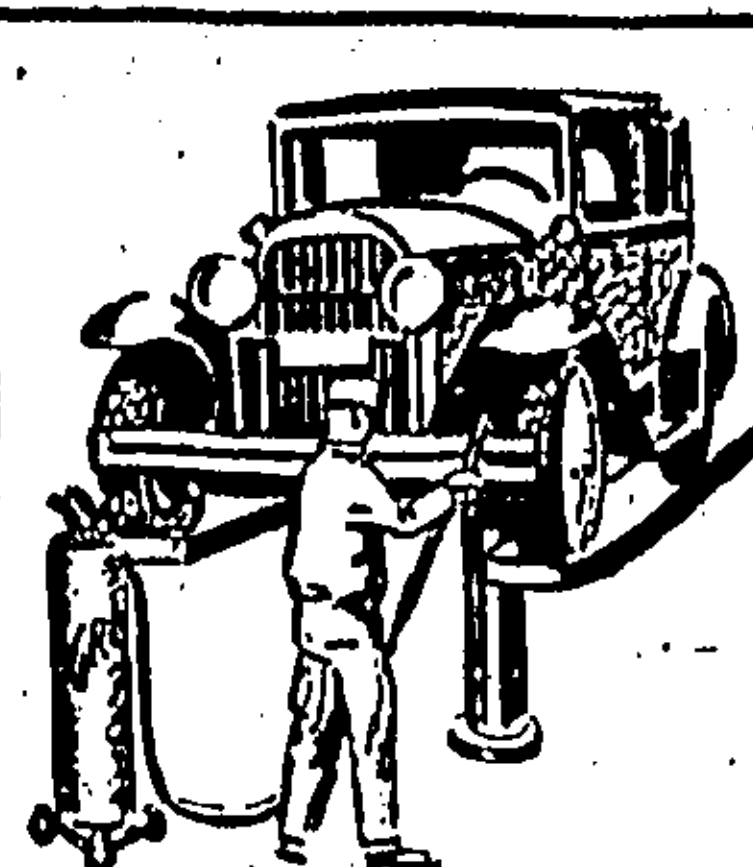

Mrs. Stocks—One witness put it more bluntly when he said that betting preserved us from Bolshevism.

Mr. Keynes—That would be something. (Laughter.)

Mr. G. Picken, Chairman of the Bookmakers' Protection Association, suggested that ready-money betting should be legalised and that bookmakers should be registered or licensed, in proportion to the population.

He did not agree with what had been said as to the tremendous turnover in betting of 200 to 300 million pounds a year.

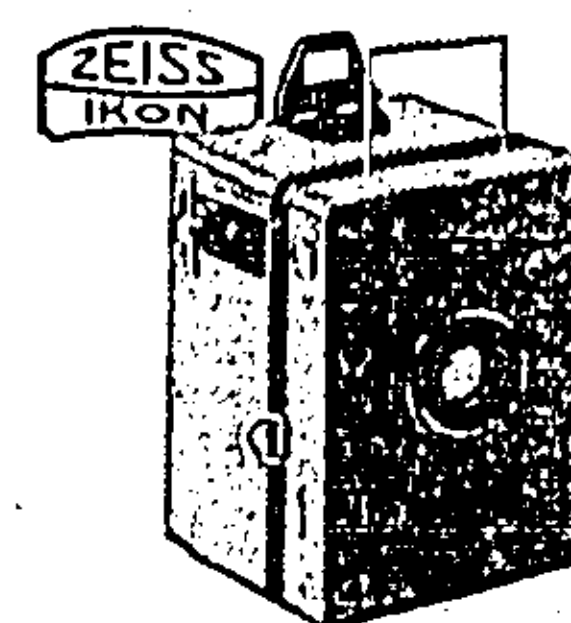

Sir Stanley Jackson—Is there half of it?—No, nor a quarter of it.

WAR DEBTS

It is something to the good that at last the United States is getting down to the business of endeavouring to secure a final readjustment of the war debts problem. After both President Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt had in turn shown little disposition to give immediate attention to the question, there is now evidence that both realise the urgency of the issues involved.
There is, indeed, a definite decision to open negotiations with Britain right away. Britain is,
and long has been, ready to make a move. She cannot, however, contemplate any continuation of payments on the present basis.
That point was made perfectly clear when the December instalment was paid. As was plainly indicated, "the old regime interrupted by the Hoover moratorium can never be revived." In effect, Britain made the December payment under protest, whilst at the same time definitely asserting that this would be the last on the basis of the existing agreement. There is no call at this juncture to go into the pros and cons of the war debt controversy. The case for revision has been stated in strong terms, not only by British economists and statesmen, but by Americans also.
The burden of these debts is,
without the least shadow of doubt, standing in the way of a solution of the world economic problem. There must be a radical revision if anything approaching a satisfactory adjustment of that problem is to be attained. Conditions have so immensely changed since the funding agreements were made that there can be no question of continuing on the old basis.
Add to that fact the further point that the debts themselves are clogging up the whole economic position, and the case for revision becomes all the stronger. Mr. Hoover apparently thinks that Britain's return to the gold standard must be the primary objective in attempting to restore the world's economic equilibrium, but it has been made clear times without number that Britain will not take that step until there is the prospect of a proper working of the system. It was by reason of the manner in which the system was operated that she was compelled to go off gold. She will be careful not to come back until there is some definite assurance of a willingness on the part of other nations to work in complete harmony and co-operation.

An Unparalleled Constitution

When the King puts his signature to the new constitutional bill for India, he will be endorsing political emancipation for a sub-continent. In all the varied and colourful history of the British Empire there has been no denouement so dramatic as this looming event, which will see a group of races of diverse religions, creeds, and outlooks coming within the scope of a governmental system that has no parallel, either in the Orient or the West. The closing of the Indian Round Table Conference saw considerable progress recorded between Indian and Britons regarding the federation which is planned between British India and the Indian States. In the major questions of finance, defence, and commercial relations there are still several points of difference, but it is recognised that the achievement of the conference has been so pronounced that India's journey to self government has been appreciably shortened. The conference in reality was a committee charged with preparing a workable constitution for a population of 352,000,000 people. Previous Conferences broadly outlined the aims of Indians and the purposes of the British Government regarding India. But it was left to this conference which recently disbanded to bring generalities down to realities. Within its terms of reference the conference could not fail, for it was convened for the purpose of reaching as much agreement as possible on those questions affecting Indian government which previous conferences had not decided. Consequently the question of failure could not arise, for where agreement was not reached the fact was recorded. It is true that agreement will require to be reached on these issues, but the varied points of view have been set down in black and white, and it will be left to the British Government to make its final decisions from the facts now in its possession. Indeed, the future of India's government now rests with the British Parliament. A Parliamentary Joint Committee is to be set up, to work within terms of reference to be outlined by the Cabinet. The function of this committee will be to prepare what will virtually become a parliamentary bill, containing the actual constitution in the light of the recommendations of the various conferences.

Africa's New Rand?

Despite the long statement issued on Thursday, there are many Britons who would feel more comfortable about the Kenya gold leases if the Colonial Office were not so sure that it is doing everything for the best.
That kind of official nonchalance is so very often a prelude to disagreements. A new goldfield is a subversive agency in all respects. If the Kenya one reaches even a tenth of the importance of the Rand, it will transform the whole conditions of life
over a wide region and, the mutual relations of British settler, Indian trader, and native.
Every step taken in view of such contingencies should be twice and thrice deliberate. It has been settled with remarkable expedition that native landowners are to be ousted from the holdings secured to them by solemn Ordinance. They are to have compensation, of course, and,
"wherever it is possible," they are to be settled on other land.
Where that is not possible, what is the ex-agriculturist to do with his compensation, and how is he to live when it is spent? History in many parts of the world
prescribes these inquiries. The Colonial Secretary says that the natives have had the matter
"explained" to them. The Native Commissioner confessed in the Legislature that the interference "will not be popular."
Britain will be fortunate if it goes no further than that. The proceedings scarcely suggest the serious thought and preparation that such a business demands.

JEALOUS HUSBANDS

By EDWIN BRISTOWE.

Most contracts involve a single straight-forward issue between two parties. Jones contracts to build a good bridge. Brown contracts to pay a good £10,000 for it. All Jones has to do is to scrape together £10,000.

The two parties are in no way
concerned with each other's business, provided, of course, the bridge
does not collapse when Brown stamps on it, and provided Brown's sovereigns stand the test of Jones's teeth.

But with the marriage contract
it is different. Harold contracts to supply Sylvia with the necessities of life—a new hat every week and a dance frock every fortnight (with shoes and stockings to match)—and Sylvia contracts to—
well, to look pretty, shall we say,
and to make a home fit for Harold to live in.

But unfortunately it doesn't stop there. It is by no means a single straight-forward issue.

Detailed explanations of minor clauses in the contract are demanded long after the contract has been signed—most irregular. Sylvia wants to know whether Harold supposes that she can buy a new hat with what was left over from paying the baker, and Harold wants to know whether Sylvia supposes that brown paper soaked in water can fairly be called ox-tail soup.

There is a game in which the two players watch each other like cats so that they shall turn over their cards as simultaneously as they can. This game is called Snap. So is marriage—sometimes.
Harold's dinner will be ready on the tick provided he gave Sylvia a parting kiss in the morning and promised not to be detained at the office. Sylvia's allowance will be doubled if for seven consecutive days she can manage to keep quiet at breakfast.

So it goes on. And the contract is fulfilled bit by bit in the vast majority of cases more by luck
than good judgment.

But, unhappily, there is evidence that in many cases (especially today) the contract has had to be torn up, not altogether by mutual desire, but simply because poor Harold has failed in one particular clause which he swears was not in the contract when he signed it. It was there all right, in very small print between the lines, but he didn't see it.

The words complained of seem to be inserted between the time-honoured lines (used, by the way,
by happy couples word for word
for the past eight hundred years)
"to have and to hold, from this day forward, for better for worse."
They cannot get together again
all at once, because the document of the contract is in shreds, and it must be pieced together again bit
by bit before they can read it through properly.

All this trouble might so easily have been avoided if Harold had had the sense to see that husbands must be jealous, or at least pretend to be jealous, if they are to keep their wives happy.

Of course, there are jealous husbands, and, like all rare things,
they have to be very carefully handled. But man is a hunting animal, and more often than not he has a job to control the hunting instinct.

Nevertheless, if he must go on hunting after he's married (and he's not much of a man if he does)
the least he can do for his own wellfare is to guard the prey he has already captured.

THE TUNG WAH HOSPITAL.

OLD AND NEW DIRECTORS MEET AT LUNCHEON

A picturesque function was held yesterday at the Tung Wah Hospital, when the twenty newly-appointed Directors for this year, under the Chairmanship of Mr. Pun Hui-cho, were the guests of a luncheon party given by the outgoing Directors under Mr. Chan Lim-pak. The occasion was marked by speeches delivered by Sir Shouson Chow and the Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall, in which the latter stated that the old building of the Tung Wah Hospital was so dilapidated that reconstruction has become an urgent necessity, which should receive the attention of the new Directors.

Sir Shouson Chow, speaking in Chinese, said that the outgoing Directors had achieved great success in the internal administration of the Tung Wah Hospital, and that the new Directors must be able to take over the work in connexion with the Shanghai disturbances. Sir Shouson also congratulated the Directors for their courage in effecting the much needed reorganization of the Hospital's work, adding that it was fortunate that the Chinese community that among the new Directors a most distinguished group of experienced public workers, such as Mr. Pun Hui-cho and his colleagues, had been found to take over the work for the coming year, and he wished them all success.

Hon. Mr. Kotewall's Advice. Hon. Mr. Kotewall said that in endorsing the Hon. Sir Shouson Chow's remarks he desired to add a few of his own. He thought that attention should be drawn to the fact that for several months last year the time of the outgoing Directors was greatly occupied in raising large sums of money for the relief of refugees in Shanghai; but that in spite of this pre-occupation the Directors contrived to effect many substantial improvements in the internal administration of the three hospitals under their charge, and in making progress all round. As conspicuous monuments of their work, may be mentioned the two new wings recently added to the Tung Wah Eastern Hospital, and the completion of a scheme for building tenement houses and shops on the old Po Leung Kuk site for the purpose of obtaining additional revenue for the maintenance of the three hospitals, the cost of running which has been steadily growing during the last two years. He continued:

In addition to raising large sums of money for charitable work outside the Colony and for structural additions and improvements to the hospitals, Mr. Chan Lim-pak and his colleagues have themselves subscribed most liberally. They have every reason to be proud of their year's achievements—achievements rendered possible by their devotion to duty, their ability and courage, and their splendid team work.

The old building of the Tung Wah Hospital is so dilapidated that reconstruction has become an urgent necessity. It is a pity that Mr. Chan Lim-pak and his colleagues have had not time to complete their scheme of reconstruction, and I commend their attention and careful consideration of the new Directors, pledging to them the unstinted co-operation and assistance of the Permanent Directors.

How the Hospital could best be reconstructed was, of course, a problem which should receive the greatest care, and the speaker was confident that the new Directors would do what would be to the highest interests of the Hospital.

Mr. Chan Lim-pak Replies.

After thanking the Chinese representatives on the Legislative Council for their constant advice and assistance towards the Hospital's work, Mr. Chan Lim-pak thanked the speakers for the many nice things said about him. Mr. Chan regretted that because of the urgent need for relief in the Shanghai troubles, which occupied no less than six months' of his Directors' time, he and his colleagues were unable to carry out the cherished scheme for the reconstruction of the old Tung Wah Hospital.

Mr. Pun Hui-cho, representing the new Directors, suitably thanked the permanent advisors of the Hospitals and the old Directors for their presence and advice.

Among the prominent guests who were present to congratulate the new Directors were the Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, and permanent advisors including Messrs. Li Yau-tsun, C.B.E., Li Fo-kwal, Tang Shiu-kin and other former Chairmen of the Hospital.

After the ceremony, which was accompanied by Chinese music, the old and new Directors had lunch at the Hospital, and were then taken by the old Directors to visit the Tung Wah Eastern Hospital in Soekunpoo and the Kwong Wah Hospital at Kowloon.

THE HISTORY OF THE BIBLE

In the Old Testament, apart from two sections which are written in Syriac, the language of Babylonia, all the books were written originally in Hebrew. But the Hebrew in which it was written did not look like the Hebrew which is in our Hebrew Bible now. Originally there were no vowel marks in Hebrew. It would be just as if nowadays we wrote the sentence "Give that to him" as "Giv thit t him". You would have to put your own vowels in and it might be possible to put more than one in and yet give sense. There is an example in Genesis where Jacob is said to lean upon "the bedhead" where the correct rendering as archaeology has discovered should be "head of his staff", as in Egypt being taken in this way. The vowel signs were only put in about the year 800 A.D.

In the New Testament the whole was written probably in Greek, that is, Hellenistic, not Classical Greek. Some say that the Gospel of Matthew was written originally in Hebrew, but there is no substantial proof of this. Both the Old and New Testaments, particularly the latter, were copied with the most scrupulous care.

When we turn to translations of the Bible we find that the first translation of the Old Testament was begun about the year 285 B.C. It was translated into Greek. Various fabulous stories are told of its translation, one being that seventy writers were put into different cells and each translated the whole Bible. On examination it was found that each had translated it in exactly the same words! This translation was called the Septuagint. A translation of the whole Bible was made into Latin by Jerome about the year 405 A.D. This was called the Vulgate and is used by the Roman Catholic Church now. It was also translated into Syriac under the name Peshitta. When this was accomplished we do not know. Strangely enough it omits the books 2 Pet. 2 & 3 John, Jude and Revelation.

During the long period of the Roman Catholic domination of Europe little was done in the way of translating the Scriptures, but in England the Venerable Bede and King Alfred translated parts of the Bible into Saxon. Aelfric translated the five books of Moses and some of the Historical books, but it is the name of Wycliffe which will be forever linked closely with the history of the English Bible. He made a complete translation of the Bible into English about the year 1380 A.D. A bill was introduced into the House of Lords to suppress this, as it was considered dangerous, but the bill was rejected through the efforts of John Gaunt. The first printed edition was Tindale's New Testament. Tindale then Bishop of London ordered all copies to be bought up and burnt, but the money thus accruing enabled another edition to be printed and the Bibles being thrown publicly into the flames aroused the curiosity of many to read the interdicted book. Tindale was martyred, but Coverdale continued the work and translated the whole Bible from Dutch and Latin into English. This was the basis of the present English Authorized Version. About this time translations appeared also in German, French and Italian.

About 1609 appeared the Roman Catholic edition of the whole Bible in an English translation, called the Douai version. One of the translators William Allen had already been nominated as the Archbishop of Canterbury and would have become so if the Armada had succeeded. One special difference of the Douai version may be noted. Wherever in the Authorized version we have "repentance", it is translated as "penance".

In 1604 A.D. appeared the Authorized Version of King James I. It is needless to say that the English of this has never been surpassed for excellence of diction. It has formed one of the moulding influences of the English language. Its quotations are on everybody's lips. Even the titles of a great number of novels have been taken from its pages. It is safe to say that it is so firmly embedded in the English nation that no other translation will ever supersede it.

The Revised Version appeared in the year 1885. Though very often the translation is more accurate, its language fell far below the Authorized Version. The Marginal references are nearly as important as the changes in the text.

The Bible was first translated as a whole into Chinese by Dr. Robert Morrison and completed about the beginning of the last century. This herculean task was carried out at Canton and Macao where Morrison's grave is a well-known object of interest. Since then translations have been made into easy Wenli, Mandarin, Cantonese, Hakka, Fokien and Ningpo, and parts if not all the Bible into Chinese Braille. Parts of the Bible have also been translated into the tribes' language in West China, such as the Flowery, White and Black Miao tribes.

MUI-TSAI CASE

WOMAN FINED A TOTAL OF $250

Remarking that it was an impossible contention, Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon refused to accept the plea that a girl had been taken into a family as an adopted daughter, and held that her position was that of a mui-tsai.

The case was one in which a married woman Chiu Kan-hoi was summoned for keeping an unregistered mui tsai and with ill-treating her, it being alleged that she used a pair of burning tongs on the girl. Evidence of this allegation was given at previous hearings.

Mr. H. W. Fraser, of the S.C.A., was for the prosecution, while Mr. Leo D'Almada, Sr., appeared for the defendant.

A fine of $100 was imposed on the first charge and $150 on the second.

MOTOR BUS FATALITY.

ENQUIRY INTO DEATH OF TWO WOMEN

Adjourned last week on account of insufficient evidence, the enquiry into the circumstances attending the death of two women who were knocked down by Kowloon Motor Bus Company vehicle No. 662, was concluded at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon, with Mr. Butters as Coroner. The jury empanelled consisted of Messrs. A. McKellar (foreman), A. J. Bursley and F. M. Cunha.

A Mrs. Remedios, who was a passenger on the bus at the time of the accident, testified to being on the bus but could not say how the accident actually happened.

The jury decided that death in both cases was due to the bus knocking down the two women, but on account of the lack of evidence, they could not arrive at a verdict.

S. AFRICAN POUND.

MAY BE LINKED WITH STERLING

Capetown, Jan. 20. The critical session of Parliament which may result in the defeat of the Government opened this morning. Lord Clarendon, Governor General, announced the Government would submit proposals dealing with the currency situation, which is interpreted to mean that the South African pound will be linked with sterling by statute, and he also fore-shadowed a Bill to encourage further the development of gold mining by increasing taxation profits on speculative exchange transactions.—Reuter.

INTERPORT GOLF CHANGE

Mr. K. M. Cumming, selected to appear in the Shanghai Interport golf team to oppose Hongkong and Manila this month, is unable to make the trip. His place will be taken by Mr. G. A. Benson.

The Hongkong Benevolent Society acknowledges with thanks a donation of 25 from Mr. C. L. Sandes, in memory of the late Mr. George Grimble. Donations of this nature are much appreciated, as the Society's funds are at present low.

TILDEN'S SERVICE IS FASTER THAN VINES

BUT YOUNG CALIFORNIAN THE BEST PLAYER EVER SEEN SAYS COCHET

INTERESTING COMPARISON DRAWN
BY FRENCH WIZARD

ALTHOUGH he regards Tilden's cannon-ball service as being faster than Ellsworth Vines' delivery, Henri Cochet, ex-world's tennis champion, discussing the merits of these two players in the American Lawn Tennis, concludes that Vines is the finest player the world has ever seen.

Cochet ridicules the popular conception that Vines is less effective on grass than on hard courts, and also emphasises the tremendous advantage enjoyed by the young Californian by reason of his ideal physical build.

"Tilden's cannon-ball was absolutely flat, it had no spin, nothing slowed it up. Vines' service, on the other hand, has a good deal of spin; it loses therefore in speed what it gains in weight, sureness and length writes Cochet.

DANGEROUS SERVICE. In any event, for execution, coordination and motion, power and suppleness, I know of no service in the world to compare with Vines'. The successful first service of Doeg alone can give an idea of Vines' service, but Doeg is a left-hander and does not hit the ball in the same way. Cochet does not share the view that Vines is more dangerous on grass than on hard courts. He is strong everywhere, says Cochet, very strong, and there is not a great deal of difference between what he can accomplish on grass or on hard courts.

"A champion's morale. A fighter's heart. A certain emotion of nervous origin but which is hardly a weakness since he has it almost completely under control. No outward sign reveals this emotion and that is why it is not generally believed to exist.

But when one is face to face with him, on the court in the atmosphere of battle, there are signs which do not deceive. However, I repeat his control over himself is so great, his faculty of concentration so solid, his will to win so overpowering that it is useless to count on his inner nervousness to beat him. It is necessary to find something else, but what? There indeed, is the great problem!"

Cochet attributes the powerful hitting of Vines to the tremendous leverage which his long arm gives him. His forehand and his backhand, taken at average height, are exceptionally consistent, says the Frenchman, considering their speed and the very narrow allowance for error which the extremely flat trajectory of the ball permits.

CURIOUS POINT.

This is a curious point and one which Cochet believes few observers have noticed. If one considers the height of the net and the average height to which the majority of balls bound, it will be apparent that Vines is himself of exactly the ideal height to permit the normal reach of the arm, in a horizontal plane, to return the ball with a minimum chance of error.

This ideal height is that which obliges the player neither to bend his knees nor to stretch on his toes.

The Frenchman illustrates his meaning by comparing the backhand of Borotra, which Cochet says is always taken very high.

"Almost always, Borotra makes this shot balanced on the extreme point of his toes.

It he were a little taller (and of course he is tall) his backhand would easily become an attacking shot.

Personally, I am a bit short for most shots. I overcome this by taking the ball before it has reached the top of its bound, but that only makes another difficulty to overcome.

On the other hand, Lyttleton Rogers is too tall; he must bend his knees. Vines, almost always, can make his attacking shots from

MRS. MOODY MAY LOSE A SET

New York, Jan. 15.
Following the announcement of the ranking of United States tennis players, officials of the United States Lawn Tennis Association predicted that the depression will end this year so far as tennis is concerned.

Mrs. Moody has announced that she will compete in the 1933 tournaments and this alone assures gate receipts.

Despite her supremacy of former years, Mrs. Moody's chances of losing now seem more possible than they have done for a long time. No one is predicting she actually will be whipped, but there is a possibility that the hard hitting Alice Marble or Carolin Babcock will win a set from her—something the other women have not done for years.

the naturally ideal position. He does not have to overcome the difficulty of lifting or lowering himself to the level of the trajectory.

GOOD PERCENTAGE. It is this which gives him such an excellent percentage of successful shots in spite of the infinitesimal margin for error which this type of drive allows.

An inch or two too high, the shot goes out; an inch or two too low, it strikes the net.

This reasoning, says Cochet, is corroborated by the relative weakness of Vines on low volleys. For a low volley he must bend his knees. To the man of calculations and measurement which results in the execution of other shots must be added, for the low volley, the co-efficient of flexion of the legs; results: the percentage of errors increases.

It is the same for the half volley continues Cochet, and Vines knows it well for he tries whenever possible to avoid this shot. All who saw him play at Roland Garros will doubtless remember that the American champion practically never made a half-volley.

A TACTICIAN. Cochet describes Vines as a tactician rather than a strategist.

He says that the American knows perfectly how to turn to his advantage the varied circumstances of a rally; he brings to his aid a maximum of intelligence and adaptability. Cochet does not believe however, that, like Tilden or

ELLSWORTH VINES.

Lacoste, he is a man to develop a plan of action far in advance, a plan which, from the beginning, orients the match towards the circumstances which are particularly favourable to its author.

"How to beat Vines?" concludes Cochet. "What new weapons to find? What tactics to commence? How to derange this mechanism as sound as it is precise and powerful?"

"Perhaps it is along the lines of precision which it is useful to search. I have said above that he allows a minimum margin of error in the execution of his basis strokes. The least deviation costs him the point."

Entertaining Shanghai Interporters

FULL PROGRAMME

The programme of arrangements for the entertainment of the Shanghai football team has been drawn up and includes three matches, against the Services and the Combined Chinese and the Hongkong Football Club. The Services and several social events. The Shanghai visitors are due to arrive on Monday on board the President Hoover and on Tuesday afternoon the Hongkong Football Club ground will be placed at their disposal for practice. In the evening they will be the guests of the Hongkong Association at a cinema performance.

On Wednesday the northerners will be taken for a motor ride round the New Territories and then will be served at the Royal Hongkong Golf Club, Panling, by courtesy of the Committee. The evening has been left free.

The Interport match with Hongkong is to be played on Thursday on the Hongkong Football Club ground at 3 p.m.

The engagements for Friday include a motor car drive round the Island with tea at the Hongkong Hotel Roof Garden on their return while in the evening the Shanghai team will be entertained by the Hongkong Football Association Council.

Commencing at 3 p.m. on Saturday January 28 Shanghai will play the Combined Chinese on the Hongkong Football Club ground at Happy Valley and at 7.30 p.m. they will be the guests at a dinner at the Chinese Merchants' Club by courtesy of the Hongkong Chinese Amateur Athletic Federation, whilst after dining the team will be entertained at the Dance at the Kowloon Cricket Club by courtesy of the President and Committee.

At ten o'clock is being given at the Ropale Bay Hotel by Mr. Y. K. Mok on Sunday afternoon and on Monday, January 30, Shanghai will meet the Services on the Kowloon Football Club ground at 3 p.m.

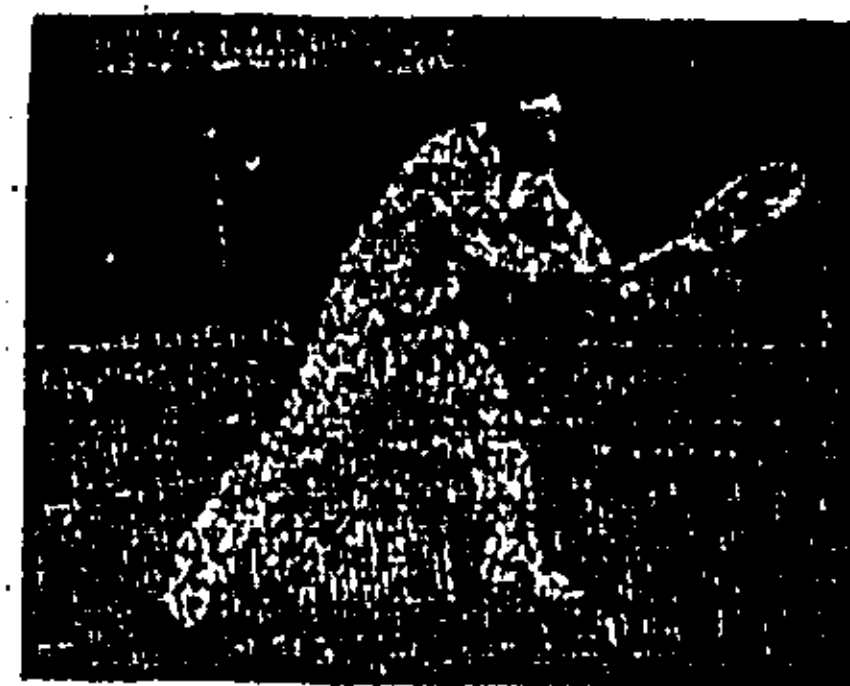

The Interport dinner is being held at the Peninsula Hotel at 8 p.m. on Monday. The team will be on the Empress of Canada at noon on Tuesday, February 1.

NUNOI HEADS JAPANESE NATIONAL RANKING

WELL DESERVED
HONOUR

BRILLIANT YOUNG
TENNIS PLAYER

JIRO SATO NOT IN LIST

JIRO SATO.

Japan's tennis team for the Davis Cup competition this year will consist of Ryuki Miki, Jiro Sato, Ryosuke Nunoi and Hidekichi Ito. At the same time the Japanese Tennis Association announced its national ranking of tennis players in which Nunoi is rated first and Ito second. Nunoi was also given the first position in the association's list of rankings for student tennis, which was announced recently.

Miki, who is now in London, and Sato, have both participated in the Davis Cup competition heretofore as members of the Japanese team but the others will make their debut this year. Nunoi's selection, as well as his assignment to the No. 1 position on the ranking list is believed to have resulted largely from his victory over Jiro Sato, captain of last year's Japanese Davis Cup team, in the final of the national championship tournament played in November.

SATO NOT INCLUDED.

Jiro Sato is not included in the list of singles ranking because he has not played frequently enough in Japan during the past year and for the same reason he was left out of the student ranking. But officials of the Tennis Association recognized that, had he been included, he would have been entitled to either first or second place.

Third place in the national rankings is held by Tamio Abe, a former Davis Cup player. The doubles rankings are topped by Jiro Sato and Minoru Kawaji, of Waseda University, who won the national doubles title last fall. Second place is held by Nishimura and Murakami of Keio, and third place by Horikoshi and Ubara of the Kwansai Gakuin.

NATIONAL RANKINGS.

The national rankings as announced follow:
Single—Ryosuke Nunoi (Keio Shodai); 2nd, Hidekichi Ito (Keio Shodai); 3rd, Tamio Abe (Tomon); 4th, Suechiki Tertsji (Waseda); 5th, Hideo Nishimura (Keio); 6th, Hyotaro Sato (Takyo Asahi); 7th, Minoru Kawaji (Waseda); 8th, Garamu Akimoto (Osawa Company); 9th, Jiro Fujikura (Meiji);

VITAL RUGBY MATCH THIS AFTERNOON

Triangular Tournament Struggle

The last match of the Triangular Rugby Tournament will be played this afternoon at Sookunpo, when the Navy and Army meet.

The match is a vital one as a win for the Army will allow them to draw level with the Club at the head of the table, whilst if the sailors either win or draw it will give the Club the trophy.

The present position of the teams are:

Club	P	W	D	L	Pts
Club	4	3	0	1	6
Army	3	2	0	1	4
Navy	3	0	0	3	0

Last Saturday a depleted Navy XV went down to the Club by a big margin, but the return of H.M.S. Devonshire should go far towards strengthening the many obvious weaknesses in the side then fielded.

The kick off is at 4 p.m.

TO-DAY'S INTERPORT FOOTBALL TRIAL

Owing to an apparent misconception as to the time of kick off in today's Interport football trial at Happy Valley, we are asked to state that it is at 3 p.m.

Although at the meeting of the Hongkong Football Council this week, Mr. W. E. Holland's offer to assist in the final arrangements for the Interport was refused, he has now been asked to lend his aid in this direction, and he will help next week in completing the work started by him as Secretary of the League.

FRIENDLY HOCKEY

YESTERDAY'S GAMES DESCRIBED

In a closely contested and interesting game between the Naval lower deck XI and the H.K.S. Brigade yesterday, honours were easy, the two teams netting once each in the second half. A feature of the game was the brilliant play of the Brigade "keeper, who saved shots sent in from all angles. At the interval there was no score although Richardson had had luck on two occasions. Steers and Rhodes were outstanding in the Navy men's defence.

Soon after resumption, Richardson narrowly missed, but a few minutes later opened the account for the sailors following a melee in the goal mouth. The Brigade then took play to the other end where their inside right found the net. Play continued at a fast pace until the end but there was no further scoring.

MEDWAY OFFICERS WIN.

The Medway Officers inflicted a crushing defeat on St. Andrew's Club by 16 goals to 2 on the Navy ground, King's Park, yesterday evening. The game was played at a terrific pace, the Medway forwards completely outpacing the St. Andrew's defence. Though the two Saints backs put up a good showing, they could not cope with their swift opponents, who seemed to be all over the place. Seven goals were scored by the Naval ten in the first half, and the other nine in the second half. The Saints scored one goal in each half, N. A. E. Mackay and E. F. Fincher being the scorers.

WILL MADE AT A
DINNERSIR JAMES BARRIE'S
"BEQUESTS"

Mr. James Barrie made his will when speaking at the Authors' Club dinner at Grosvenor House.

As chairman, he proposed "The Ladies and Literature," and said that he had decided not to talk to them about love or ladies or literature, but to make a will instead.

"It might add a friendly glow to the proceedings," said Sir James, "if I were to announce, as I do announce right away, that all of you who are gathered here tonight are to be my sole beneficiary legatees."

"I leave to the Authors' Club the most precious possession I ever had—my joy in hard work. I do not know when it came to me—not very early, because I was an idler at school and read all the wrong books at college, but I fell in love with hard work one fine May morning and I continued to woo her through a big chunk of half a century.

"She is young and gay and lively. I found her waiting for me all the way to Bloomsbury, and on the way we bought a penny bottle of ink to sling at the Metropolitan, and a silk hat with which to impress editors."

"Hard work more than any woman in the world, is the one who stands up best for her man. She is the prettiest thing in literature."

"I leave to you everything connected with science and machinery. I leave you broadcasting, though I do not believe for one moment that there is any such thing. I have a feeling that all those inventions of this age we owe to Mr. H. G. Wells. Mr. Wells is, of course, one of the great men of our calling, and I leave him to you in my will with pride but with misgivings."

exercise the greatest care in the choice of baby's food. So much in later years depends on the foundation laid in infancy. With the mother lies a big responsibility, the welfare of the coming generation. The tropics especially call for a healthy constitution. For baby, therefore, the best only is good enough. This is the reason why you should give baby plenty of "BEAR BRAND" Milk. It does more than merely nourish. It builds up the whole system. It paves the way to perfect health and success in life. BEAR BRAND comes from the great Swiss Milk centre, the Emmenthal. It is very rich in nutritive elements, absolutely pure and an infant food par excellence. ### MARCH 17 TO BE OBSERVED.

ST. PATRICK'S SOCIETY ANNUAL MEETING

The local St. Patrick's Society will hold a ball in the Peninsula Hotel on March 17.

That decision was reached at the annual meeting of the Society, held in the Hongkong Hotel yesterday afternoon. Col. C. D. Myles, O.B.E., presided.

The annual report read as follows:—During 1932, 25 new members joined the Society and 35 have resigned in consequence of having left the Colony. A number who failed to pay the subscription for 1932 have, in accordance with the rules, ceased to be members.

The total funds in hand on November 30th, 1932, amount to $6,698.00 of which $4,120.00 is on fixed deposit at 3% per annum. A further donation of $200 has been made by Mr. Andrew Harper and its receipt is gratefully acknowledged. The sum of $320 has been disbursed for charitable purposes during the year.

St. Patrick's Day, 1932, was celebrated by a ball held in the Peninsula Hotel, and was a great success.

A wreath was laid on the Cenotaph on St. Patrick's Day, and another on Armistice Day, by the president assisted by members of the committee.

The production of an Irish play by members of the society is under consideration by the committee and members are asked to give the project their fullest support.

The committee thanks the hon. auditors and all members who have assisted them on the various sub-committees during the year.

Committee Elected.

The report was adopted on the motion of Mr. E. H. Williams, seconded by Sir Joseph Kemp.

The formal amendments to the rules of the Society were approved and the financial statement adopted.

The following committee was elected for the ensuing year:

Sir J. H. Kemp, Kt., C.B.E., Colonel C. D. Myles, O.B.E., Capt. P. T. Mahoney, R.E., Messrs. G. P. Murphy, M. G. O'Connor, E. H. Williams, B. H. C. Halliwell, J. Hosford, F. P. R. James, M.C., T. Murphy, R. H. D. Wade, Professor F. A. Redmond, Dr. G. W. Pope and Commander McCarten.

Messrs. M. G. O'Connor and W. B. Finnigan were elected hon. auditors. The chairman paid a tribute to the work they had done for the Society and expressed the Committee's gratitude.

On the motion of Inspector Lane, seconded by Mr. James, it was decided to hold the annual ball on March 17. In approving of the resolution, Col. Myles appealed to members to give ample notice of the number of tickets they would require. This notice, he pointed out, simplified the work of the committee and the management of the Peninsula Hotel.

The chairman contended that the price of tickets should not be altered. If a reduction were made, he said, there would be all the less for charity.

Sir Joseph Kemp proposed a vote of thanks to Col. Myles and Capt. Mahoney who would soon be leaving the Colony. The Society, said Sir Joseph, was deeply indebted to these two gentlemen for the work they had done.

The vote was carried by acclamation.

In reply, Col. Myles said his work for the Society had been pleasant. Patriotic societies, he thought, did a tremendous amount of good. After thanking members of the committee for their support, Col. Myles paid a tribute to the work which Sir Joseph Kemp had done for the Society. It was his extraordinary backing which put the Society in its present position. He proposed a vote of thanks to Sir Joseph and this too, was carried by acclamation.

Capt. Mahoney also returned thanks for the kind words which had been spoken about him.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

"A Honeymoon Adventure," the Associated Radio Picture, which opens tomorrow at the Queen's Theatre is based upon a mystery story, "Footsteps in the Night," by Mrs. C. Fraser Simpson, the wife of the composer of "Maid of the Mountains." The story itself moves fast and the film has taken hold of this speed and enhanced it, until the whole moves with a slickness and a wealth of action which holds the audience enthralled.

Eve Martin (Benita Hume) and her husband Peter (Peter Hannen) have their honeymoon in an old Scottish Castle interrupted by a telegram summoning Peter to town in connection with his plans upon which his whole future depends. Whilst Peter, overcome and held captive, is out of the way, Eve, with simply her woman's wit for an ally, has to combat against the sinister workings of Walter Crenson who, installed in the Castle as the friend of her husband, endeavours to lead the playmate Eve through a maze of intrigues, but it is more by the unconscious hand (or rather paw) in the game taken by her pet spaniel, Woge, than by any act of her own, that Crenson is successful in his quest. After taking Crenson fishing, she, being used to the Scottish hills, manages to outdistance him and catch the London-bound express. Not to be outdone, Crenson "borrowing" her powerful car races the train to its next stop and boards it. This sequence, with the road and rail running at times parallel whilst car and train rush on at breakneck speed, is one of the most thrilling scenes, a picture which in itself is not lacking in thrills. Aboard the train Eve again outwits her adversary by a neat but, ridiculously easy trick and succeeds in holding him off until the end. Benita Hume as Eve Martin combines dramatic acting with just the right amount of Puckish humour to give a perfectly secured reaction to every situation. Harold Huth as a suave villain at the most fastidious thrill hunter could wish, and Peter Hannen, although not having so much to do, being in the interests of the plot held captive for a large part of the story, also acquires himself well when the occasion demands. In apportioning credit for the unqualified entertainment qualities of "A Honeymoon Adventure," the excellence of the technical details of the picture—and this includes sound, camera work, direction and slick handling throughout—must be given high marks. In this respect the film more than measures up to the majority of highly-lauded "supers."

"Young America"

Hundreds of books, plays and motion pictures have been turned out in recent years dealing with home life in this hectic age. The faults and virtues, the pleasures and pains of domestic existence to-day have been discussed from every conceivable angle—except one. That one is the angle of boyhood. How the youngsters of the nation regard our modern schemes of things and our high-pressure mode of living constitutes a viewpoint that few writers have touched. Yet it is of vast significance to adults as well as to the youths who in a decade or two will be running the country. What do these young people think of marriage and divorce to-day? Of our new educational theories and methods? Of their home surroundings in this age of radios and fast cars and prohibition and mother's clubs and dozens of other outside interests undreamed of thirty years ago? Such questions are said to be answered in a vivid and unforgettable manner in a new screen offering, "Young America," the making of which "Frank Borzage," the maker of "7th Heaven," "Bad Girl," and "After Tomorrow," recently directed for Fox Films. With such celebrities as Spencer Tracy, Doris Kenyon, Beryl Mercer, Ralph Bellamy and Sarah Padden in the leading adult roles and two

to the work which Sir Joseph Kemp had done for the Society. It was his extraordinary backing which put the Society in its present position. He proposed a vote of thanks to Sir Joseph and this too, was carried by acclamation.

Capt. Mahoney also returned thanks for the kind words which had been spoken about him.

THEFT FROM SINCERE COMPANY.

FINE OF $100 IMPOSED ON SALESMAN

A fine of $100 was imposed by Mr. Wynne Jones at the Central Magistracy yesterday on Mak Siu-kau, charged with feloniously stealing silk goods from the Sincere Company while employed as a salesman.

Mr. F. C. E. Rendall appeared for the defendant and pleaded guilty. Mr. Rendall asked for leniency, pointing out that the defendant had been trusted servant of the company for nearly 19 years. His salary was $54 a month with a bonus, which last year amounted to $300.

Additionally, the defendant held shares in the company worth $3,000 and his mother-in-law was also a big shareholder.

The silk goods stolen had been remnants and the defendant did not realise the seriousness of taking them. He was sorry for his theft and had expressed his contrition to the firm.

Mr. Rendall asked that the defendant be bound over.

Mr. F. G. Nigel, who appeared for the Sincere Company, said his clients were not pressing for a heavy penalty. He thought a fine would meet the case.

Mr. Wynne Jones agreed, and the defendant was fined $100 and bound over to be of good behaviour.

Juvenile screen "finds," Tommy Conlon and Raymond Borzage, as the youthful heroes, this film opens at the King's Theatre on Sunday. William Cagney wrote the screen play and dialogue from the original play by John Frederick Ballard.

"Skyscraper Souls"

The one-hundred-and-two-story building conceived by Director Edgar Selwyn for "Skyscraper Souls," now showing at the Queen's Theatre, contains all the features found in the modern skyscraper. All the action in the new film takes place in this tremendous steel structure. Selwyn first shows the separate drama, taking place in various parts of the building—schemes, intrigues, the striving of men and women for and against each other—then suddenly he smashes them in one all-embracing dramatic climax. The filming of "Skyscraper Souls," entailed a great deal of technical and engineering work to supplement the routine structural details usually executed by the art and construction departments of the studio. Sets in many instances are of more durable nature than usual, and the camera department designed special travelling cranes for lifting the cameras. Warren William heads the cast of the new photoplay, which was adapted to the screen from Faith Baldwin's best-selling novel and serial story, "Skyscraper." Maureen O'Sullivan, Anita Page, and Verree Teasdale have the most important feminine roles. Others in the cast are Gregory Ratoff, Norman Foster, George Barbier, Jean Hersholt, Wallace Ford, Hedda Hopper, Helen Coburn and John Marston.

"Sob Sister"

A girl who has never failed. Such is the reputation that Linda Watkins, young, blue-eyed and blonde star, brings with her to the screen in her initial appearance as the title role in the Fox dramatic romance "Sob Sister," the Fox dramatic romance serial story. "Sob Sister" is Minna Gombell, whom you will remember as Edna, the wise-cracking girl friend, of Mildred Gilman's best selling novel and was directed by the man who directed Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter in "Daddy Long Legs," Alfred Santell.

BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

One of the questions most frequently asked by those just taking up the One over One system is, "How do you distinguish between a weak third hand bid and a good third hand bid?"

The method is simple enough. If you open with an extremely weak hand as third hand—in other words, make nothing more or less than a defensive bid, one to try to throw your opponents off the track—don't make the mistake of ever re-bidding that hand, even though you may have good support for a bid that partner may make.

If you ever re-bid that opening third hand, your partner will now feel that you have a hand as good as a first or second hand bid.

Another problem in the One over One system is the showing of two suits.

While the showing of a second suit is not classed among the absolute forcing bids, I am very frank to admit that most of the better players very seldom pass when partner has shown a second suit.

The Bidding

South and West passed. North's hand was not particularly strong, but it was one that cannot be passed third hand; therefore he opened with a bid of one club.

East passed. South bid one heart. This is a One over One force.

If North had opened with a very weak bid, he has the right to pass this One over One force—in other words, a player having originally passed, as South did, practically loses his right to force.

However, hearts were the only bid that North could not pass, and as his hand had strength in every suit he was now correct in making a bid of one no trump which is a sign-off bid, showing that he did not care to proceed further with the hand unless South showed additional encouragement.

South now showed his second—a little dangerous, but two five-carders may certainly aid to build up a no trump. With the showing of South's second suit, North jumped to three no trump.

The Play

East opened the only suit not bid—a spade—which West won with the ace. West returned the three of spades, his fourth best, which was won by North with the jack, a heart being discarded from dummy.

The queen of diamonds was led; East won with the ace, and next led the jack of hearts. West played the encouraging nine and North won with the ace.

North played the king of clubs which East won with the ace. East played the ten of hearts, dummy winning with the king.

LEGION OF HONOUR
FOR M. MONTARGIS.POPULAR LOCAL RESIDENT
GETS DISTINCTION

Information was received at the French Consulate yesterday that the President of France had conferred on M. Maurice Jean Baptiste Montargis, the well-known Hongkong exchange broker and former manager of one of the French banks in the Colony, the distinction of a Chevalier of the Legion of Honour.

M. Montargis was born in Paris, and until 1923, when he became a broker, he had been connected with various banks in the East as accountant and manager. In the first instance he was an accountant in the Comptoir National d'Escompte de Paris in London, and was later transferred to Bombay. On the outbreak of War in 1914 he joined the French Army and served as a lieutenant in the Artillery on the French frontier in Salonika and Macedonia. When the Armistice was declared he was serving at Verdun. For bravery he was twice mentioned in despatches.

After the War, M. Montargis returned to the banking profession and was chief accountant in a French Bank at Tientsin and assistant manager of a bank in Saigon. He then went to Yokohama as manager of another bank, and in 1920 was transferred to Hongkong as manager of a well-known French bank here. In 1923 he gave up the banking profession and became an exchange broker.

Education Patron.

During his stay in the Colony M. Montargis has been closely identified with the social activities of the French community. He has taken a great interest in educational matters, being one of the founders of the French prizes at the University and also an examiner in French at that institution for many years. He is also president of the French Library, which is situated at the Consulate and contains some 3,600 volumes.

In addition, M. Montargis is a member of the Hongkong Club, one of the founders of the Hongkong Sports Club, a member of the Royal Hongkong Golf Club, of the Hongkong Cricket Club and the Hongkong Rotary Club.

M. Montargis is a keen Freemason, and in this connexion in a Past-Master of the Victoria Lodge, No. 1026 E.C., and has been secretary for the past four years. Other ranks he holds are P.Z. of the Cathay Chapter (No. 1165 E.C.) and East Preceptor of Victoria Preceptory (No. 78 E.C.). He has recently been appointed President of the District Board of General Purposes by the D.G.M., Mr. J. Owen Hughes.

Congratulations are due to M. Montargis and his wife who shares the honour with him.

North discarding a club.

An interesting squeeze play now developed. A small diamond was returned from dummy. West discarding a club and declarer winning with the nine.

Declarer cashed his queen of spades, discarding a heart from dummy. He then played a small diamond, winning in dummy with the king. West discarding a spade.

Declarer then led the two diamonds from dummy and West was squeezed. He could discard his queen of hearts on the first diamond, but on the second diamond he must drop either a spade or a club.

If a spade is dropped declarer's seven is good, while if a club is played, both declarer's clubs will be good. In this manner North and South made four odd at no trump.
